TIRED OF TALK.

"One of the Common People" Voiced His Disapproval of Senatorial Eloquace. But now he hath made me weary thou hast made desolate all my compa ny. And thou hast filled me with wrinkles.-Job xvi, 7, 8. Should vain words have an end, or what emboldeneth thee that thou an-wereth?—Job xvi, 3. Several times during the silver debate the galleries of the senate applauded the sentiments of their favorites on the floor, and five or six times the vice president warned the spectators that he would be under the painful necessity having them bounced if they repeated the oflense. The crowd became quite hilarious one day during a tussle be-tween Senators Dutler, Hill and Palmer, and more than once they started a loud laugh and even marked their approval by handelapping as one or the other of the legislative duelists scored a point. Senator Harris is the guardian of the Senator Harris is the guardian of the dignity and peace of the senate, says the Washington Post. It is his prerogative to see that no rule or tenet of good order is broken. He may always be relied upon to notice any undue interest that the galleries may take, and after the spectators had given two rounds of applause, one for Senator Hill and the other for Senator Palmer, the venerable senator from Tennessee arose, and in his most deliberate tones, shaking his long forefinger at the chair, said:

"Mr. President, I rise to a point of order."

Then he paused, and there was a dead Then he paused, and there was the chair's asking for the point. Mr. Harris went on impressively: "It is in gross violation of the rules of the body for the tion of the rules of the body for the galleries to make expression of approval or disapproval of what is occurring on this floor."

"Does the senator from Tennessee enter a motion to have the galleries cleared?" asked the vice president in his sternest manner, glaring at the galleries. "Yes: put them out," said Senator

Butler in an aside to to Mr. Harris.

But Senator Harris was not so precipitate and only said that he would demand it if the offense should be repeeted.

Then the vice president arose and formally warned the galleries that they formally warned the galleries that they must keep their hands off the fight. Suddenly a voice, strange to the ears accustomed to the debates, arose in the silence that followed. It was not the voice of a senator or a clerk. It came from on high, near the roof:

"Mr. President, as one of the common people I will withdraw before I am put I have been here six weeks listening to this stuff, and I am tired."

The deputy sergeant-at-arms who sits in the chamber ran around the sides and snapped his fingers at the intruder, and snapped his lingers at the intrider, who was making his way through the crowds. The man paused near the door and belied his threat by waiting to hear a little more of the "stuff" that tired him so sadly. There was a calm for a moment, then one of the doors of the callery capand, any any appared and gallery opened, an arm appeared, and the man disappeared as though he had gone down a stage trap.

The individual, protesting that he meant no harm, was led to the front door, and then the deputy gave him a gentle shove, an admonition to return no more and put him out into the cold and cruel world. He was well dressed and spoke in excellent language. He refused to give his name, but said that he came from the Keystone state.

SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED.

A Dry Goods Clerk Who Is a Gem in His Way. Detroit Free Press.

"Talking about hypnotism," said a Detroit lady to a friend, "let me tell you an experience of mine. I went into a dry goods store in this city to make a purchase of three yards of green silk. There was a nice, pleasant looking man behind the silk counter, who fixed a pair of large black eyes upon me

"'We have no green silk to match your sample, but here is a beautiful shade of blue, and he rippled off the folds over his fingers after the manner of dry goods clerks.

"'I don't want blue,' I said, but so faintly my voice did not sound like my own. I felt that the salesman expected own. I felt that the salesman expects, me to buy that silk—I could not resist his will, and told him to cut off three yards. When the dressmaker saw it she was surprised.

"I thought you were to buy a green sick for your triuming," she said.

"I changed my mind," I answered, although I detested the blue.

"A few months afterward I went into that same store and saw the same salesman looking at me, and felt drawn toward that counter. His look was grave ward that counter. His look was grave ward that counter. Its look was grave and respectful, but compelling.

"Something I can show you?" he asked. My eyes fell upon a piece of gray silk, a hideous mottled gray, that resembled a sulky sky and made me homesick to look at it.

"Nice thing, isn't it? he said, 'and cylic new. That is the only pattern of mite new. That is the only pattern of the kind that we have.'

"'I'll take three yards,' I said, des-perately, and when it was done up he handed it to me with a polite bow. "As soon as I was out of the store I wondered what on earth I would do with that miserable purchase, and I don't know yet. Now, isn't that a clear case of hypnotism?"

Her friend said that it was, and that the man must be very valuable to his employes on that account.

TOMBSTONE'S IDEA OF HUMOR. Its Leading Citizen Had Very Original

Ways of Amusing Himself. San Francisco Chronicle. Among many famous characters who made men dance till they dropped or made men commit other queer antics, Curly Bili was probably the most picturesque. According to the stories told by P. H. Gale, of Indro, Curly Bill was ost estimable and humorous ruffian. and could take a joke as well as make one with ready cheerfulness. "A green sort of a chap walked into the saloon where we were all assem-bled," said Mr. Gale. "This was in the said Mr. Gale. "This was in Tombstone, you know, and no sconer did Curly Bill see him than he thought he would have some fun. Going up to this long, lank, slab-sided boy, Curly Bill said to him: "You'll just'muse the gent by dancing.'

"Before you could say Jack Robinson "Before you could say Jack Robinson bar, "Before you could say Jack to Johnson that chap jumped clean onto the bar, and, pulling out two six-shooters, pointed them at Curly Billy saying: I'm just lookin' for you; now dance, by—, "Did Curly Billy dance? You bet yer life he did, and many a time has he told the story till the tears ran from his eyes with laughter. It wasn't safe to feel with Curly Bill. He was a peculiar kind of a chap, and if he didn't take a kind of a chap, and if he didn't take a liking to your face or your clothes he'd as soon kill you as not. One day he went to a Frenchman, and gently tap-ping him with his six shooters, observ-

"Look a-here, you go and stand on that hill ontside of town all night, and if I don't find you there in the morning I'll kill you, sure as yer born.'
"That Frenchman stood there all night, and when Curly Bill told him he might go he left not only the hill, but the town.

The miners down at Tombstone had

The miners down at Tomostone had notions to which it was dangerous to run counter. They disliked the Mormons and if a man was known to belong to that set ten chances to one he would never leave the camp alive.
"I remember a fellow coming into a barroom and yelling that he was a Mormon and could wipe out anybody. The bartender a tender-hearted sort of a bartender, a tender-hearted sort of a chap, told him to be quiet. The fellow bawled again. In a flash a coil of rope was about his head and he was being jerked to the ceiling. The barkeeper rushed out.

"'Gents,' said he, 'the man is drunk and don't know what he is saying. He an't responsible."
"The strain on the rope slackness and the Mormon was dropped to the floor, where he lay in a senseless heap. His terrible escape had completely sobered him. When he came to, the barkeeper helped him to his feet and hid him.

"When the saloon was empty he gave the man this piece of good advice: 'For heaven's sake, get out of here. I can't answer for your life. Those fellows may be back any moment and may have changed their minds. I don't want you to be hanged here, so get up and git, and while you are in this camp never say you are a Mormon."

THE TRAIN ROBBERS

In Jail at Batesville and Intense Excitement Prevails.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 5.—The following dispatch from Batesville, Ark., has been received by the Associated Press: This little mountain town has been in the midst of the most intense excitement all day to-day. The two train robbers captured yesterday afternoon are in jail, and there is no reasonable doubt as to their guilt. One who gives his name as Bill Lemmons, but who is pelieved to be the notorious outlaw Bill Dulan, is undoubtedly the leader of the

The posse in pursuit of the four men still at large came upon them at any early hour this morning, two miles from Jamestown, and a lively running fight ensued. The bandits were forced to abandon six of their borses and take to their heels. They also abandoned several overcoats, a pistol and a lot of jewelry. The news of the skirmish created the most intense excitement

Soon scores of big brawny mountain-eers with wicked looking Winchesters and astride swift horses were hurrying to the scene.

At 5 p. m. another skirmish took place between the opposing parties, but place between the opposing parties, but the batters on no one was hurt. The bandits were making for the White river bettoms on foot and are to-night corraled in the caves along the banks of that stream.

The Chicago War.

CHICAGO, ILL., Nov. 5 .- The city council chamber, where the aldermen fought so savagely Saturday was in charge of the police to-day. Seven offi-cers were locked inside and outside sentries were locked inside and outside sear-tries were kept. Two policemen were also on guard in the mayor's office, which was tightly locked. The Demo-cratic alderman held a secret caucus today but at its close announced that they had done nothing. Everything now hinges on te-marrow's meeting.

Lobengula's Whereabouts.

LONDON, Nov. 5 .- The correspondent of the Times at Fort Victoria says: It is stated that King Lobengula, with 7,000 of his warriors, are in the Mato-pho mountains, a short distance from Bulawayo, and that another fight is ex-pected shortly, but the Matabeles fear the machine guns, and dread an en-counter in the open fields.

The German War Bill.

London, Nov. 6 .- The Berlin correspondent of the Times says that the war bill tends materially to increase the stability of the imperial revenue and to place the relations of the imperial ex-chequor with the federal states on a secure and permanent footing, but that on the other hand, it tends to seriously diminish the financial control of the diminish the financial control of the imperial diet.

Hebrews Expelled.

Madrid, Nov. 6 .- A dispatch from Melilla says that General Marcias expelled all the Hebrews from that place. It is reported that the representatives of the powers at Tangler approve of Spain's action at Melillia.

Dry Goods.

New York, Nov. 6.—The week opens on a rather uninteresting market for dry goods, with mail orders quite numerous but disappointing to quantities. The same is true in orders from evident buyers, who are inclined to hesitate when it comes to buying quantities. The explanation for this conservative policy is found in the fears that on re-assembling Congress would take up tariff discussion. A prominent banking house said to-day that they had invested $400,000 for some dry goods reopie in stocks and bonds exclude they preferred to carry light stocks of goods and seen their surplus invested in some culck assets. There is more or loss of this being done. Cotton goods to-day have been dull at unchanged prices. Frint cloths, prints and printed fabrics have been quiet but steady, dinghams and woven fabrics about hold their own. Woolen and dress goods are neglected. Foreign dry goods are duil and the jobbing trade quiet throughout. The best seiling goods are light weights and light colors, suitable for spring trade.
